You will have more time for self-improvement than The Bobbin Boy or Cobbett had in his youth that distinguished member of the British Parliament, of whom so much has been said in the papers of late. He knew very well that his parents would not have made such an arrangement, unless their low circumstances had forced them to it. At any-rate, after thinking the matter over, and becoming convinced that it was best for the family, as his mother said, that he should become a bobbin boy, and weighing the advantage of having a library to visit, he was quite reconciled to the arrangement.
