History at your fingertips. Two forces producing equilibrium, the secret of nature, are designated by the duad, and these three - life, good, and evil - constitute one law. Moreover, they argue, the result is different in kind from physical evolution; consciousness, rationality, and morality are better explained by a "first cause" that itself possesses these features.

Apartfromtheunlikelyhypothesisofadoptionfromaforeign tongue, the OT The arguments he used, two of which had already been set forth in Abraham Ibn Daud's Emunah Ramah are essentially cosmological. God mourns because of the evil decrees He has pronounced upon Israel; He goes into exile with His children; He studies Torah and gives His view on halakhic topics, and is overjoyed if the scholars triumph over him in halakhah.
