So He has given us the book of Leviticus in which He sets forth the difference between that which is harmful and that which brings wholeness, health, and happiness. That was true peace--a safe and quiet little space in the midst of a noisy and raucous world.

Well I don't anymore. But God, in Leviticus, tells us that He knows all about you. He is indicating by these sacrificial animals that a provision has been made for everyone, so that God's people can be made whole and holy. I pray that you will respond to Him by offering Him your whole heart, your whole life, without any reservation or holding. Jesus wants for us what God wants for us, and what God wants for us is to be whole, with hearts that are in the right place.

It is as if you can put all three tenses in a single word, so that God is saying, "Your slaying of an animal and the shedding of animal blood cannot save us."
